On August 29th, a new sculpture was unveiled at the Loon Lake Nature Preserve, a ten acre site dedicated to preserving and maintaining the health of Loon Lake and its watershed. The unveiling was the culmination of over a year of preparation spearheaded by Paula Thoma, working together with the Loon Lake Watershed Improvement Alliance to create an educational and interactive work that supports its mission.

The sculpture was funded in part by The NYS Council on the Arts and The Arts Council of the Southern Finger Lakes. Paula served as project manager, working with many local artists to create a place for reflection and observation. Local donors completed the funding and over 100 attendees were able to participate in the unveiling which included a poem written for the occasion, music by Paige Howard playing the Earth Song with her ukelele followed by a didgeridoo accompanist. The reception included an opportunity for attendees to create their own portions of the artwork through fingerprinting and painting rocks.

We are very proud to house this work of art and the community with nature that it represents. Here is a short video highlighting the artists and their work.
